

hrreporter.com
Jul 3, 2018

Winners of the 2018 Readers' Choice Awards announced

More than 65,000 votes were cast by HR professionals across Canada in the third annual competition

TORONTO – Canadian HR Reporter and Thomson Reuters unveiled the winners of the 2018 Readers' Choice Awards this morning, a listing of the top vendors and suppliers to the human resources community across the country.

“We were overwhelmed at the response from HR professionals this year,” said Todd Humber, publisher and editor-in-chief of Canadian HR Reporter. “More than 65,000 votes were cast in total, which is an unprecedented level of engagement as the prestigious awards competition marks its third year.”

Earlier this year, readers were invited to cast ballots in a wide range of categories. The top three vote getters in each category were awarded the Readers' Choice designation.

“This is one of my favourite competitions,” said Humber. “It’s because it’s a real window into the offices of your colleagues across Canada. Who do they trust? Who do they turn to for professional advice, information and services?”

The special section was published in the July print and digital editions of Canadian HR Reporter. For more information, see our special section online at <http://www.hrreporter.com/2018-readers-choice-awards> or view the special digital edition at <http://digital.hrreporter.com/i/996527-chrr-readers-choice-awards-2018>.

© Copyright Canadian HR Reporter, Thomson Reuters Canada Limited. All rights reserved.